

HorseSaddleShop.com Introduces Reinsman's X Series Performance Saddles

The Horse Saddle Shop is now featuring Reinsman's all new 2008 line of saddles from new master craftsman and team member Dale Martin. The saddles promise to catch the eye of western enthusiasts participating in Roping, Barrel, and Cutting disciplines across the country.

Bremen, IN (PRWeb) March 16, 2008 -- With saddle manufacturers consistently creating new lines of saddles with brand new technology and features, it can be hard to tell what's an actual breakthrough improvement and what's merely a convincing gimmick. HorseSaddleShop.com is proud to only stock what's important: quality saddles that are comfortable for horses and riders. When Reinsman came out with their new 2008 X Series Performance saddles, the Horse Saddle Shop listed them immediately. Reinsman has been creating beautiful, comfortable saddles suited to each purpose for six years, without gimmicks and flashy terms only designed to catch the customer's eye, then his wallet.

Reinsman has over 500 years of combined experience among 25 craftspeople, designing and handcrafting each saddle to fit the horse and rider. Customers have long depended upon Reinsman for their superior bits, pads, and leather tack at affordable prices. In 2002 the company began manufacturing saddles with a team of experienced craftspeople gathered in Yoakum, Texas. And just like their tack and supplies, the saddles soon became a popular choice for a quality product. HorseSaddleShop.com is proud to have such a dependable and trustworthy manufacturer.

The X Series is their newest line of performance saddles, and it comes from a surprising source. Dale Martin, last year's addition to Reinsman's team of saddle makers, designed the series. Dale Martin is the founder of Martin's Saddlery, which produced bits, tack, and saddles with Martin's first-hand knowledge and 25 years of experience. Martin is a PRCA Team Roper, Calf Roper, and Steer Roper.

The X Series saddles were designed for superior performance in Roper, Cutter and Barrel disciplines. Like all of Reinsman's products, they're hand made in the USA. When the Horse Saddle Shop asked how the X Series saddles differ from other performance saddles on the market, Martin explained, "The main thing is that this line of saddles is a custom built saddle, hand made, hand cut, and hand tooled from start to finish. Our main focus is the saddle fit for the horse and the rider along with a great look." The saddles certainly are beautiful as well as comfortable and well-suited to each discipline. The Horse Saddle Shop looks forward to not only stocking the saddles, but also hearing back from the customers who use them.

When the internet is chock full of companies who stock anything to make a dollar, the Horse Saddle Shop is pleased to weed out cheap imitations and foreign imports and remain faithful to American manufacturers who deliver what they promise. Reinsman refrains from inventing new flashy phrases and sticks with what works. As Martin stated, "We at Reinsman also believe in the old adage, if its not broke don't fix it."
